

IRA bomb Britain's House of Commons

LONDON (UPI) — A bomber believed to have been a member of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) slipped through the dense security screen of the House of Commons today and planted a bomb that exploded only a few yards from the meeting place of Britain's legislators.

The blast shattered a gas main setting off a fire that damaged 900-year-old Westminster Hall, one of the most historic buildings in the kingdom and imperiled its world-famous hammer-beam ceiling. Fire fighting teams from all over the capital managed to put out the blaze before it did serious harm.

Scotland Yard said 11 persons were injured, only one of whom had to be kept in hospital—a girl with a broken leg. It accepted the bombing as a challenge from the IRA that no building or person is safe and rechecked security at Buckingham Palace and other sensitive centers. Since the Palace of Westminster—a complex of buildings which includes the House of Commons, the House of Lords, Westminster Hall and the tower of Big Ben—has always been considered an obvious target for the IRA it has been under heavy guard.

But an underground car park is being built in the forecourt of Westminster Hall and several score workers, some of them Irish, have been engaged as laborers. With or without inside help a bomber managed to place from 15 to 20 pounds of gelignite in an alcove near the staff canteen.

At 8:20 a.m. (3:20 a.m. EDT) today a caller with an Irish accent telephoned Press Association, a local news agency, and said a bomb was due to go off in the House of Commons in six minutes. The caller used a code word that identified his warning as genuine.

The warning was still being circulated when the bomb detonated about 10 minutes later with at least four members of Parliament already in their offices preparing for today's session of the House of Commons which proceeded as scheduled.

None was among the injured. David Steel, chief whip of the Liberal party, said they got out into the street to find smoke billowing from the building and already almost obscuring Big Ben.

In scenes reminiscent of the wartime bombings fire apparatus from all over central London raced to the scene and also prepared to protect Westminster Abbey, most precious of the nation's churches, just across the street. The explosion came at the height of the morning rush hour and traffic in central London was jammed for hours.

Steel was indignant that a building of such historic ancestry should be attacked—Winston Churchill lay in state there, Charles I was sentenced to be beheaded there, Henry VIII played tennis in the hall and when it was cleaned some years ago his tennis balls were found in the beamed ceiling.

Gas price posting on Council agenda

The ongoing battle of whether or not service station operators should be required to post prices of their gasoline will be continued tomorrow night when the Lompoc City Council meets to discuss the controversial matter.

The meeting will take place in the rear of the City Hall Auditorium at 119 West Walnut Ave., at 7:30.

A special committee that was set up by the Council will report back to the board and announce its findings regarding the mandatory posting of gasoline prices at service stations.

The committee has met three times since it was created by the Council on May 5. But according to at least once councilman, another month may be needed to resolve the controversy.

Sol Lefkowitz will recommend that the ordinance (no. 932-74) be put on the July 16 agenda.

The councilman said that even though the committee was granted 30 days to come up with a solution, another 30 days will be needed to find an acceptable solution.

Lefkowitz said that an acceptable solution is one that is "acceptable to all parties involved and is a positive solution."

The councilman also added that the committee is considering "several measures which may accomplish the goal of the many citizens who have become interested in the issue."

Councilman Art Scott, who will be out of town tomorrow and will not attend the meeting, said that the committee had developed 14 various ideas to solve the problem. But at the committee's second meeting many of these ideas were thrown out because they were impractical.

But Scott added that the committee had agreed to some things at least. "In considering the problem sometimes it is not the apparent one and we must go deeper in order to resolve it. At the same time, we do not want to destroy the free enterprise system and way of life that we cherish so dearly," he said.

Lefkowitz also said that preservation of the free enterprise system was of the utmost importance.

Scott said one of the things that was discussed during the second committee meeting was the possibility of a central phone number that consumers could use to find different gasoline prices around town.

The councilman said that the answering service would be monitored and controlled by the consumers. The service would possibly be installed, said Scott, "so that everyone could very easily know what the cost of gasoline is at the various service stations."

Scott would also like to see the service expanded to the mass media and would like to see a resolution written that would ask for the voluntary posting of gasoline prices.

According to another committee member, Richard Rieke, the idea of the central telephone number was termed prohibitive because of costs and difficulties.

Israel granted nuclear pact similar to Egypt's

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) — President Nixon concluded a visit to Israel today with an agreement to provide nuclear technology for peaceful purposes similar to one signed in Egypt last week. He then returned to the Arab world for the last stop of his Mideast journey.

King Hussein, America's oldest Arab friend, and his 25-year-old queen Alia greeted President and Mrs. Nixon when their plane arrived in Jordan. Several hundred onlookers, including many small children waving American flags, applauded as Nixon got off his plane following a half-hour flight from Jerusalem.

Eight F105 Starfighter jets escorted Nixon's plane from the moment it entered Jordanian airspace and roared overhead as the King and the President reviewed an honor guard.

"Welcome to the great President Nixon," airport loudspeakers boomed. "Welcome to the guest of our King Hussein. Welcome to the eternal land of Jordan, to the land of the (Arab) cause."

The promise to sell nuclear reactors, fuel and technology to Israel came as part of a communique signed by Nixon and Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin in Jerusalem. It also included provisions for additional U.S. economic and military assistance for Israel.

Nixon's Israeli visit was friendly although it was the first stop where there were placards referring to Watergate. There also was a small anti-Nixon demonstration in behalf of Jewish "prisoners" in the Soviet Union. It was broken up by police who pushed the protesters aside. Nixon did not see it.

Today's communique was very similar to the one Nixon signed with President Anwar Sadat in Cairo Friday, showing U.S. attempts to be even handed in its Mideast dealings. It calls for new U.S. economic aid to "offset the heavy additional costs inherent in assuring Israel's military capability for the maintenance of peace."

The nuclear agreement like the one signed with Egypt—and like similar ones with other countries—contains safeguards to make sure nuclear technology is used for peaceful purposes, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said.

Nixon's message throughout his visit to Jerusalem was one of U.S. friendship. He told leaders Sunday to take the necessary risks to "wage peace" so that the "cradle of civilization will not become its grave."

"Under no circumstances does the fact that the United States is seeking better relations with some of Israel's neighbors mean that the friendship of the United States and the support for Israel is any less," Nixon said in a toast at a dinner in his honor Sunday.

City police officer stabbed subduing family dispute

Veteran Lompoc Police Sgt. Richard DeLung was recovering from a stab wound today, and his alleged assailant was in jail on a charge of attempted murder.

DeLung, 34, was listed in good condition in Lompoc Hospital with a wound in the right chest area. Hospital officials said he was walking around today and in good spirits. A department spokesman said DeLung joined the force 10 years ago.

Jailed was Joseph Santos Bordayo, 29, of 908 W. Walnut Ave. Bail was set at $3,000 this morning. Police said the man suffered a fractured nose and a cut lip early Sunday morning during efforts by DeLung and fellow officer John Coday to subdue him. Coday himself was reported off duty today suffering minor injuries as a result of the confrontation.

Despite his wound, DeLung was reportedly sitting on top of Bordayo along with Coday when an ambulance and backup police officers arrived.

DeLung and Coday had gone to Bordayo's home Sunday before daylight, as a result of a call for help from Susan Lee Rodriguez, 11, sister of Bordayo. The officers found Bordayo sitting on a couch amid some debris that had apparently resulted from a dispute involving Bordayo, his mother, Maria Guadalupe Rodriguez, 44, and two other sisters, Mary Lou Guaderrama, 19, and Loretta May Rodriguez, 12, all of the west Walnut Avenue home.

DeLung was assertedly stabbed while in the act of arresting Bordayo for disturbing the peace. "I'm stuck," DeLung said and Coday came to his assistance, felling Bordayo. Despite being in a state of shock, DeLung managed to cover the wound to stop the flow of blood before the ambulance arrived.

Court lets stand Kerner conviction

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court let stand today the conviction of former Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner Jr., the first sitting federal judge to be found guilty of a felony.

In a brief order with Justice Thurgood Marshall not participating, the court refused to hear pleas by Kerner's lawyers that a judge cannot be convicted in criminal court without first being impeached by the House and removed from office by the Senate.

Kerner, on leave of absence but still a judge of the 7th U.S. Court of Appeals in Chicago and drawing his $42,500 annual salary, was convicted last year of mail fraud, conspiracy, tax evasion and perjury.

In other major actions today, the Court:

—Ruled 6 to 3 that a state is not required to provide a lawyer to a convicted indigent when he appeals to the high court.

—Refused to hear an appeal in which Bible fundamentalists argued that Houston, Tex., must use school texts giving "equal time" to the Genesis theory of creation when discussing evolution.

—Ruled that inspecting the outside of a suspect's car for evidence in a murder case is not the sort of "search" requiring a warrant.

NEW DELHI (UPI) — China exploded an enormous nuclear bomb today in its Lop Nor testing area about 1,500 miles west of Peking, the Indian Atomic Energy Commission announced. France exploded a smaller one in the South Pacific earlier today.

It was believed to be the first time two nations were known to have carried out atomic tests the same day.

The Indian announcement said today's China blast was carried out above ground at 2 a.m. EDT in the Lop Nor region.

"On the basis of the signals obtained at our monitoring stations," the announcement said, "the explosion was conducted in the atmosphere and had a yield of approximately one megaton of TNT"—a million tons of TNT.

The commission gave no other details.

China exploded its first atomic low-yield bomb on Oct. 16, 1964, becoming the fifth nation to possess nuclear power. An explosion of a Chinese hydrogen bomb was announced June 17, 1967.

China's Lop Nor region, a desolate and sparsely populated area in Sinkiang Province which borders the Soviet Union, is the country's traditional nuclear testing ground.

Weather

Partly cloudy through Tuesday. Chance of a few showers. Continued cool. Highs today and Tuesday in the 60s. Low tonight in the upper 40s to mid 50s. Northwest winds 10 to 20 miles-per-hour afternoons.

Tuesday tides

High tides of 3.6 feet at 10:21 a.m. and 6.3 feet at 9:17 p.m. Low tides of minus 0.9 feet at 3:54 a.m. and 1.9 feet at 2:55 p.m.

Peking has repeatedly defended its domestic nuclear testing program, but has criticized other countries for conducting tests outside their territories.

The report of the blast followed word earlier in the day from Australia and New Zealand that France exploded a nuclear device today above Mururoa Atoll in the Pacific Ocean.

Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam and his New Zealand counterpart, Norman Kirk, both protested France's reported nuclear explosion over Mururoa. Whitlam warned that the test was "likely to lead to deposits of radioactive fallout within Australian territory."

Japan said it would protest the French blast if it were confirmed.

Kirk said the French test was a "sizeable explosion" but at 20 kilotons—20 tons of TNT—it was much smaller than the Chinese test. He said France had been working on a miniaturized nuclear weapon.

SBCEA pay pact okayed

An agreement on salaries and fringe benefits reached today by the Santa Barbara County Employees' Association and the County representative in a series of negotiating sessions was approved by the board of supervisors.

These negotiations had been underway since April 4.

The agreement will cover around 1,400 employees who are members of the Association.

Raymond D. Johnson, county administrative officer, said that the agreement provides for salary increases ranging from eight to 10 percent, plus a revision and extension of the shift differential.

It also provides for improvement in the unemployment insurance benefits and continuance of compensation for unused sick leave.

The County also agreed to a change in the method of compensating for overtime.

One CEA member, a computer operator, was granted a 20 per cent increase.

But for the Service Employees International Union the wage dispute continues.

SET YOUR THERMOSTAT HIGH TO LOWER YOUR AIR CONDITIONING COSTS.

Makes good, logical sense once you stop and think about it, doesn't it? Then here are more ways you can get more comfort for your money through better air conditioning efficiency.

Clean and inspect filter screens regularly to reduce power consumption and eliminate dust and pollen.

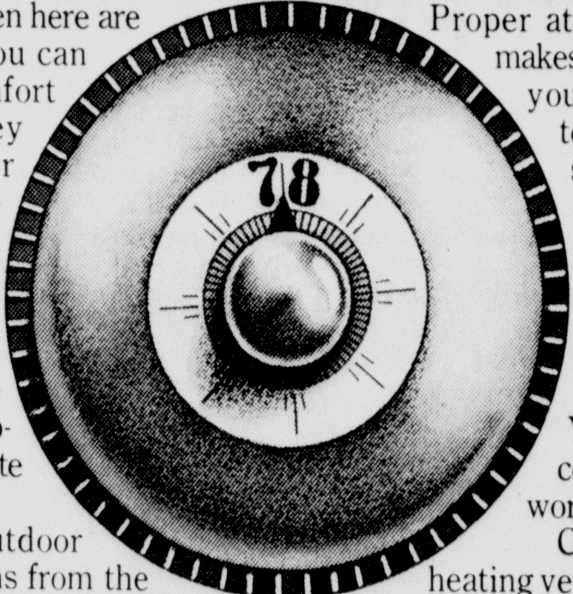

Protect outdoor cooling systems from the sun. Place them on the north, or shady, side of the house. Shrubbery should not be placed so close to outdoor units that the air flow will be restricted.

Proper attic ventilation makes work easier for your cooling system. It releases stagnant heat.

Shade your house — especially roof and windows — with trees and large plants. You'll ease your cooling system's workload.

Close central heating vents when using window air conditioners. Keep cool air in your living areas, not in the ductwork.

Watergate: two years old

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two years ago this morning, security guard Frank Wills found masking tape on a door leading into the Watergate office building and called the cops.

That event changed Richard Nixon's life and put the word Watergate into the history books.

It was about 2 a.m. Sgt. Paul Leeper, and officers Carl Shoffler and John Barrett answered Wills' call and searched the building. Barrett saw the shadow of a man outside a sixth-floor office and yelled, "Hold it, come out!"

"They got us," someone whispered into a walkie-talkie. Five men wearing blue surgical gloves stood up, their hands raised. "Are you gentlemen metropolitan police?" asked James McCord, a security officer of the Committee to Re-Elect the President who was arrested in the office of Democratic party chairman Lawrence O'Brien.

The trail of the arrested men led to the White House, to the President's most trusted advisers, and recent public opinion polls indicate that many of the same people who overwhelmingly returned Nixon to the White House that year — before the rest of the scandal unfolded — now favor his impeachment.

A year ago today, former White House counsel John W. Dean III was getting ready to tell his story to the Senate Watergate Committee. He testified that Nixon knew of the cover-up, even participated. A Watergate grand jury has named Nixon as an unindicted co-conspirator and the Supreme Court said this weekend it would decide whether that citation is legal.

There are still unanswered questions about the break-in. No one has ever said for sure what the burglars wanted, and whoever knows won't tell. O'Brien apparently was the target. Asked about the information the burglars wanted, deputy GOP campaign director Jeb Magruder said O'Brien was "certainly from our standpoint, their most professional political operator, (who) could be very difficult in the coming campaign. So we had hoped that information might discredit him."

Magruder told the Senate Watergate Committee this break-in was part of a plan proposed by G. Gordon Liddy, a former FBI agent and CRP employee. His partner was E. Howard Hunt, a former CIA agent and spy novelist who saw himself as "a member of a special investigations unit, later known as the plumbers, which the President had created to undertake specific national security tasks for which the traditional investigative agencies were deemed to be inadequate."

Hunt said the reason for the break-in was, according to Liddy, "that he had information, the source of which I understood to be a government agency, that the Cuban government was supplying funds to the Democratic Party campaign."

Other burglars had been recruited by Hunt in early 1971. Some were "plumbers." They were Cuban-Americans who remembered the Bay of Pigs and seemed like characters out of spy novels: Frank Sturgis, Eugenio Martinez, Virgilio Gonzalez and Bernard L. Barker.

On May 27, 1972, one of these teams — the exact members remain unknown — broke into Democratic National Committee offices and tapped a series of phones. Barker followed Hunt's orders to look for evidence of Cuban contributions and found none, but stole and photographed other documents.

Across the street, in Room 419 of Howard Johnson's motel, sat former FBI agent Alfred Baldwin III, eavesdropping and taping what he heard. He said he listened to about 200 calls some dealing with political strategy but others personal — "explicitly intimate," he recalls.

But the tap on the phone they wanted — O'Brien's — didn't work right, so on June 17, 1972, they went back. Barker, Martinez, Sturgis and Gonzalez checked into $38-a-night rooms at the Watergate Hotel next door. Sometime that night, McCord put tape on a door from the garage into the office building.

Wills, a 24-year-old guard, found it and took it off. He dismissed it, figuring it had been done by maintenance men, and went out for coffee. The surprised burglars decided to break in anyway. They put on another strip of light-colored making tape, a device burglars use to keep a door from locking. Wills found it again and placed his call.

Debris of missing yacht found; 10 feared lost

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — A 13-foot sailboat dinghy and two large sections from the cabin of the yacht Shooting Star, missing with 10 persons aboard, was hauled from waters off the Mexican coast by searchers Sunday.

"It would indicate there is a possibility the craft has been broken up," said the Coast Guard, which reported a 10-mile stretch of debris was also scattered near the recovered dinghy. "The fate of the 10 men is still unknown."

The blue sailboat, one of two dinghies, known to have been carried by the pleasure yacht, was found capsized in three-foot seas about 32 miles northwest of San Benito island off Baja California but there was nobody aboard.

Except for the white section of cabin material, there was no sign of the 63-foot converted navy air-sea rescue craft or any of its 10 passengers, including newly re-elected Orange County supervisor Ronald W. Caspers, 43.

They have been missing since they issued a distress call just before midnight Thursday from waters near San Benito Island, about 275 miles south of San Diego, Calif. They reported they were taking on water and in danger of sinking.

The ship sailed from Cabo San Lucas at the tip of the Mexican Peninsula, carrying politicians, family members and friends on a post-campaign vacation cruise.

The Shooting Star got into trouble in 15-foot waves and 20-knot winds churned by the advance of hurricane Connie, several hundred miles south of where the ship was last located, according to its radio reports.

Caspers and the ship's owners, Fred Harber of Santa Ana, Calif., were both experienced sailors. Caspers has won trophies in ocean racing and was involved in a prior accident at sea, which killed his first wife, Bea, and another passenger.

Also on board besides Caspers and Harber were Caspers' sons, Kirk, 20, and Eric, 18; Thomas Klein, 26, Fullerton, executive assistant to Orange County board chairman Ralph Clark; Klein's brothers, Tim, 22, and John 30; Leonard Bashore, 50, Anaheim; his son-in-law Richard Tully, 21, and his nephew, Robert Bashore, 23.

Harber is a former city manager of Cypress, mayor and city councilman of Buena Park and campaign manager for Jess Unruh in his unsuccessful bid for mayor of Los Angeles last year.

They were celebrating Caspers' June 4 re-election.

Boston — most expensive

BOSTON (UPI) — If you count prestige in dollars and cents, Boston has lots of it — so much so that the city is the most expensive in which to live in America.

According to figures released over the weekend by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, Boston leads all other cities in the nation as to the cost of living. The greater New York area ranked second, Hartford, Conn., was third.

Similar surveys in the past also showed Boston has had the dubious distinction over a period of years.

The Bureau said an average family of four in Boston would require $14,893 to live on an "intermediate" level — $2,267 above the average of 37 other mainland cities surveyed.

Only Anchorage, Alaska, and Honolulu were more expensive with figures of $16,520 and $14,937 respectively.

The report showed the average cost of goods and services jumped 9.7 per cent between the fall of 1972 and the fall of 1973 when the survey was conducted.

Brush fires blacken acres

United Press International A number of fires blackened more than 2,200 acres of brushland in Southern California this weekend. Fires raged in areas from Ventura County to San Diego.

Firefighters worked all night to control the biggest blaze which burned more than 1,400 acres of brush in the Bouquet Canyon area of the Angeles National Forest.

Winds of more than 35 miles an hour hampered efforts to contain the fire, which began Sunday afternoon.

More than 150 men from the U.S. Forest Service and the county fire department helped battle the flames, aided by six aircrafts and three helicopters.

Public opinion poll on Nixon differs

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two independent pollsters have come up with different results on public opinion toward President Nixon, but the results of both polls are unfavorable to the President.

Two Gallup polls, one taken in early May and the other taken in early June, indicated Nixon made slight gains in public support during the time period between the two polls. But Harris surveys for the same periods said Nixon has lost support.

In both polls, those who said Nixon should be removed from office outnumbered those who said he should remain.

The Gallup poll taken in early June and released during the weekend said 44 per cent of those questioned felt Nixon should be removed from office, compared with 41 per cent who were against removal. When the same question was posed by Gallup in early May, 48 per cent wanted Nixon removed to 37 who did not, indicating Nixon gained about 4 per cent during the two polls.

The Harris poll taken in early June and released last week showed 52 per cent favored removal, compared with 35 per cent who said Nixon should remain in office.

Talks stalemated in nurse strike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Negotiations in the nurses' strike against 41 Northern California hospitals were stalemated today, the 11th day of the strike.

Talks were halted Saturday after state conciliator Tom Vitaich decided no progress was being made between the hospitals and the 4,400 member California Nurses Association.

A hospital spokesman said some demands were resolved but "there are still serious differences on a variety of other issues, both monetary issues and patient care issues."

Demos gain in rolls

United Press International Democrats have made some gains in their party rolls, according to a nationwide check of registered voters. Registration, however, appears to be down in some states.

Some state officials blamed the trend on Watergate. Others said the lower figures might be caused by disenfranchised young persons who don't bother to vote or a general lack of interest in the off-year elections.

In the majority of states where voters register by party, general registration was down and Republicans lost more than Democrats. And in the majority of states where the general registration was up, GOP gains were less than Democratic gains.

Registration was reported down in Maryland, Kentucky, Oregon, West Virginia, Delaware, California, Virginia. The Republicans were losing more voters than the Democrats in West Virginia, Kentucky, Oregon and California.

Registration was up in Hawaii, New York, Iowa, Texas, Nebraska, Pennsylvania, Indiana, South Dakota, Connecticut, Oklahoma, and New Mexico. In these states, with the exception of Texas and Indiana which have no party figures, Democrats recorded bigger gains than Republicans.

Many states were still in the process of registering voters.

Colorado Secretary of State Mary Estill Buchanan, in forecasting a 2.5 per cent registration slump due to off-year elections, said final figures in August also could show dramatic increases or decreases — either voters are so angry they won't vote at all, or they will switch party affiliation.

California Secretary of State Edmund Brown Jr., the Democratic gubernatorial nominee, said he considered the slight January-June Republican registration slump and the increased independent vote a "disaffiliation basically with the Republican party."

"The Democrats are maintaining a constant figure and the Republicans are dropping down," Brown said. "It's a small drop, but that is definitely a trend."

"I think it is Watergate. I think it is the overall economy, the specter of corruption, mismanagement and drift that permeates the country ... it is driving Republicans into the independent status and disinclining even more Republicans from voting."

Maine Deputy Secretary of State Peter Damborg, in declining to forecast voter registration now under way in the state, added, however, that "many young persons are not registering to vote."

Other state officials attributed the slump in registration to a dull election year or the computerization of records that purged lists of voters who have died or moved away — and in so doing ridding many elections of votes from long deceased but loyal party members.

Dear Abby

Wife swapping — new name for an old game

DEAR ABBY: Quite some time ago my husband asked me how I felt about wife swapping. I told him I hoped he was kidding because the thought of it made me sick. The subject was dropped.

The next thing I knew, Pete started bringing home some of those crummy underground newspapers and reading ads from couples who wanted to swap. I told him if he decided to go in for anything so lowdown he had better find himself another wife.

I then went out of town for some dental surgery. I was gone for five days. When I returned Pete told me that "just for the fun of it" he had looked up a few couples who had advertised themselves as swingers, and he thought it might be fun if we tried it.

Abby, the idea is absolutely revolting to me. My moral upbringing wouldn't permit me to do anything so vile. We've been married for 33 years and I can't imagine what's gotten into him.

Pete says times have changed, and everybody swings. I can't believe that. Please tell me, Abby. Am I out of step or is he?

BEWILDERED

DEAR BEWILDERED: He is. Don't let him kid you. It's a new name for a very old game in which everybody loses. Ask your husband how he'd like to swing around to his doctor's for a checkup — from the neck both ways. He could be sick.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I go around with another young married couple who have been getting on our nerves lately because of something they do which we dislike.

They are always talking about how much money they make, how much their clothes cost them, how much they spent on their vacations, and they even bragged about how much they got back on their income tax. It's sickening.

What do you do about people like that without breaking up the friendship?

HATES BRAGGING

DEAR HATES: I would see a lot less of them. But if you don't want to break up the friendship (this is a friendship?) tell them in a friendly tone that their constant talk about money is boring, so to please soft pedal it. And if you should lose their friendship, you'll not have lost much.

DEAR ABBY: To that woman who scouted all the churches in town in search of a man and finally found one, you said, "Some people go to church to pray." — after which I thought you were going to add, "—and some people go to church to prey."

ARDYTHULLMAN

DEAR ARDYTH: Had I thought of it, I might have.

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to Happy in Houston, "Some people go to church to pray — others go to pray they meet someone," set me to thinking about the other reasons people may have for going to church.

Here is a list, which I think is complete:

1. Habit.
2. Training.
3. Fear of punishment from the Lord if they don't go.
4. To see who else is there.
5. To be seen.
6. To get spiritual inspiration.
7. To socialize.

Notice, Abby, I did not put down "to pray." One can pray anywhere.

PRAYS A LOT

DEAR ABBY: I've heard of compulsive gamblers, compulsive talkers and compulsive overeaters, but is there such a thing as a compulsive worker? I think I'm one.

LOVES TO WORK

DEAR LOVES: To borrow a phrase from the philosophical James B. Goetz, "It's only work if you'd rather be doing something else."

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90212, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

State governments grow at fast rate

United Press International State governments are growing at a sizzling pace, and in some of the 50 states spending has quadrupled in 20 years. In others, the state employs up to 5 per cent of the working force.

From New York's $19.5 billion budget to North Carolina, where bureaucracy is growing at a much faster rate than the population, the trend in most states is to bigger and more expensive operations, according to a United Press International survey.

California, with a population of about 21 million, spends an estimated 10 per cent of its gross state product on government. The state is spending more than $15 billion this fiscal year, including $5.3 billion in federal money, more than three times the $4.1 billion spent a decade ago, which included $900 million in federal funds.

The state employs 189,000 persons, but that does not include those working for the 407 cities, 58 counties, 1,054 school districts, 3,727 special districts, and 895 water districts, which spend almost another $15 billion a year between them.

New York has a budget of $9.3 billion, not including federal funds, and employs 202,000 persons, the largest single employer and single biggest spender in the state. Ten years ago, the state had a budget of $2.9 billion and had about 164,000 people working for it.

Add county, city, village, town and school districts to the state figures and government in New York tallies up to a total cost of $19.5 billion employing about 904,000 persons, or one in every 20 of the state's 18,584,400 residents.

The Citizens Public Expenditure Survey, a taxpayer organization, says New York has the highest state and local tax burden in the country, surpassing its nearest rival, California, by nearly $100 per person. In 1973 state and local tax collectors took about $174.50 for every $1,000 in personal earnings.

In virtually all cases, the number of people working for governments has ballooned in the past decade. State employees in Texas account for 4.44 per cent of the estimated population of 11,976,000 in 1974 compared with 3.38 per cent in 1964. In Montana, the 16,462 government employees was about 2.3 per cent of the population. In Colorado, state employees account for 2.1 per cent of the population and local government another 4.2 per cent. Alaska's state workforce of 14,000 is 3.9 per cent of the population compared with 2.5 per cent a decade earlier.

State government spending in Texas increased 195 per cent in the past 10 years, from $1.14 billion in 1964 to $3.38 billion this fiscal year. Over 20 years, the increase was 532 per cent.

The same has been true of most other states. In Louisiana, for example, the state government employs 127,000 to administer the $1.6 billion, minus federal funds, it now spends. Ten years ago, 87,000 worked for the state when it was spending $697 million. Indiana's 1960-61 budget was $415 million, while this year it's about $2.9 billion.

But there still were many states where government was not expensive compared with the average of $522.49 that was collected across the country in 1971-72.

In Maine, where only 16,736 persons work for the state, the average was $267 for state and local government operations; in Virginia, $418.62; Indiana, $444.11, and in Louisiana per capita state taxes are $379.

Strong protests of nuclear blast

United Press International Australia and New Zealand strongly protested today a French nuclear explosion above the Mururoa Atoll in the Pacific.

In Tokyo, a Foreign Ministry source said Japan also would lodge a stiff protest once it had definite information the blast took place.

In a press conference in Wellington, New Zealand Prime Minister Norman Kirk said the French bomb detonated early today was a "sizeable explosion" of under 20 times the force of TNT, but he declined to be specific when asked where his information came from.

"We get it on the basis of our own initiative, and it's very necessary that we should," he said.

Kirk said New Zealand was expecting between five and seven tests in the present series.

Commenting on previous tests, Kirk said there had been fallout blowbacks from the French tests in the past when radioactive debris, instead of blowing east, dropped on Samoa and the Cook Islands.

White House meeting to cut meat prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's economic counselor, Kenneth Rush — who feels profits for meat packers and retailers are too high — called representatives to the White House today to seek a way to cut retail meat prices.

Informed government sources said Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz might also announce that government meat purchases for donation to schools would be expanded — a further move to aid farmers groaning under low livestock prices in a glutted meat market.

"The (profit) margins of the middlemen — packers, retailers — are unreasonably high," Rush told reporters Friday. "It bears scrutiny as to why those margins are so high."

Rush explained the goal of the White House meeting was to get food industry middlemen to lower their profits so consumers, who already have some retail reductions, can get the full benefit of recent drops in live cattle and hog prices.

Groups invited to the White House meeting, Rush said, include spokesmen for cattle and hog producers, rural credit leaders, and representatives of meat packers and supermarket chains.

Consumer demand must be revived, an Agriculture official said, so farmers can get relief from a squeeze that currently has beef cattle raisers losing $120 a head and more on every animal they sell. "The public discovered it could get along without meat," he explained. "Now we have to buy that demand back by offering meat at lower prices."

Agriculture officials said cattle and hog prices began falling early this year as the result of a complex series of events including last year's price controls, a 1973 slowdown in marketing by farmers that temporarily sent cattle prices skyrocketing, further complicated in 1974 by a truckers' strike.

House, Senate focus on finance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House will start working in earnest this week on bills to spend the government's money next year and the Senate begins today to debate ways of raising the cash.

The Senate will be debating tax reform, a measure to cut taxes for low income groups and raising them for big business and wealthy individuals. A key member, Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, predicted it will pass but run into trouble at the White House.

"I predict that the President will veto that bill and there will be an effort to override that veto," he said. "I would be surprised if the veto is overridden."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., will lead the tax reform-tax cut fight attempting to raise the current $750 personal exemption to $825 with an option to take instead a flat $190 tax credit.

Kennedy said the $6.5 billion revenue lost in such a cut should be made up by repealing the oil depletion allowance. That would cost big oil companies $2.5 billion a year in new taxes. He would also strengthen the minimum tax which wealthy individuals pay when they end up with no taxes due because of deductions.

Long is bitterly opposed to cutting the oil depletion allowance but he said, "I am going to vote for the tax cut." He said the revenue loss could be made up "if we will just cut back in some of the areas where we are just wasting a world of money."

The House, meantime, will start pushing in earnest this week on the big appropriation bills needed to keep the government operating during the 1975 fiscal year which starts July 1. Only 2 of the 13 regular money bills needed each year have cleared the House and are pending in the Senate.

Decision nears on buying firecrackers this year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Whether Americans will be able to go on buying firecrackers to use this Fourth of July should be resolved today in a meeting at the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

A ban on firecrackers plus tougher safety rules for the manufacture of fireworks in general is scheduled to go into effect at 12:01 a.m. EDT Tuesday — 18 days before the holiday and the peak sales season.

Four trade associations filed a petition with the commission Friday saying they would be stuck with $50 million worth of firecrackers and other illegally made fireworks if the ban goes into effect. Unless the commission rules before the ban is supposed to start, there would be an automatic 30-day delay in the rules, plus a public hearing on them after that time period, not to mention sales through July 4.

But the commission moved to prevent that, calling a meeting for today and saying it will rule on the petition. If it turns down the petition, the ban will go into effect.

The commission also received a last-minute objection from the state of Hawaii whose acting governor, George R. Ariyoshi, claimed the ban interfered with oriental religious freedom. The commission turned down his request but told him he had until 12:01 a.m. EDT Tuesday to get a formal petition in the mail.

Ruckelshaus in defense Kissinger of wrongdoing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — William D. Ruckelshaus, the man who first revealed the existence of wiretaps on 13 of Henry A. Kissinger's aides, says he would exonerate the secretary of state of charges of any wrongdoing.

In Stanford, Calif., former Watergate Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox came to Kissinger's defense as well, calling news leaks and unsubstantiated accusations similar to practices in the McCarthy era.

Ruckelshaus, interviewed on television (CBS "Face the Nation") Sunday, said, "I think his role, as best as I have been able to determine, is pretty much as he has described it."

Kissinger has said he participated in a program to prevent news leaks by supplying names of individuals with access to secret material. The secretary said he did not recommend that their telephones be tapped, and in a briefing in Jerusalem today stood by his threat to resign if he was not cleared of "attacks on my honor."

"I stick by what I said a week ago, and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is going to look into this matter," he said.

"One of the things that is happening," Ruckelshaus said, "is that some of the documents that are dribbling out of the House Judiciary Committee are being used for purposes for which they were never prepared."

The records were made, he explained, "to get an overall position of what happened — where these records were — and a summary of what happened from the taps themselves."

Now, Ruckelshaus said, they are "being used in order to determine ... whether he's told the truth to the Foreign Relations Committee. I think it's really unfair to take those reports in that context."

KEEP YOUR COOL AND CONSERVE ENERGY, TOO.

- Follow these summer tips for greater comfort and wise use of energy.
1. Use heat-producing appliances sparingly. Turn off lamps, television and stereos when they're not in use.
 2. Keep drapes closed on hot days. Light-colored drapes and curtains reflect heat and sunlight outward. For even better heat reflection attach a light-colored shade outside your house over large window areas.
 3. Just as good insulation and weatherstripping help keep your house warm in winter, they help keep it cool in summer. Make sure your insulation is adequate.
 4. On hot days proper attic ventilation can reduce attic temperatures as much as 50 degrees, so your air conditioner won't have to work so hard. You'll save energy and money.
 5. Before you go on vacation, turn your gas water heater to "pilot." That way you won't waste energy heating water when you're not there to use it. When you return, just re-set the control to "on" to start water heating again.

Quarry, Frazier battle for shot at championship

OUCH!

Palmer: 12 over

Allin: 14 over

Miller: 22 over

Player: 13 over

NEW YORK (UPI) — ...And then there were three. Going into tonight's 12-round battle between Jerry Quarry and Joe Frazier, there are four top-rated heavyweights in the world—Jerry and Joe and Muhammad Ali and champion George Foreman. Sometime tonight either Quarry or Frazier will drop out, and it would not be too surprising if the Joe Louis, the referee, counts to ten over the loser. For Quarry, 197 1/2, a loss will mean the end of a carefully rebuilt career which has seen the "new Quarry" fight the way they thought he should have fought from the time he made his pro debut back May of 1965. For Frazier, 212, defeat will mean the end of his dream of regaining the title which fell from his head when Foreman humiliated him in two rounds in January of 1973. Frazier was in the Madison Square Garden ring in January against Ali, in a rematch of their historic first encounter of March, 1971, when Joe scored a unanimous decision over 15 rounds. Their second encounter over 12 rounds went to Ali, the decision being unanimous, but close. When Ali lost the first one, he set out to convince the world that he really had won it, and pretty much succeeded. When Joe lost, his dignity prevented him from protesting, but there were many—Quarry among them—who thought the referee seriously impeded Frazier's style that night. Others contend that had the fight been 15 rounds, Frazier would have gotten the nod. Be that as it may, the fact remains that Frazier must whip Quarry or lose all hope of luring Foreman into a rematch. Note that he speaks of Foreman. Both Joe and Jerry believe that Ali will come to the end of the line against Foreman in September in Africa. Quarry's worst enemy in the past has been Quarry himself. Irish as they come, stubborn and headstrong, he admits that he wasted five years before coming under the guidance of veteran handler Gil Clancy. And then there is the new wife, the lovely Charlie whose pretty face and figure mask a steel-like intensity to help her husband gain the heights he should have attained several years ago. The fight itself probably will not go the distance. Neither man is a ring stylist. Both are willing, indeed eager, to slug it out. Quarry, loser in seven rounds to Frazier when Joe was at his peak in June of 1969, says he will not make the mistake of "going out and locking horns with a bull" as he did then. Nevertheless he believes that when he lands the big punch, Joe will go. "Joe's gone back," he says. "The legs aren't the same, and the power is fading. I saw that in the Ali return, when the lefts that used to send guys kicking only slowed Ali down." As for Joe's estimation of the "new Quarry" he just smiles and says: "He's the same old Jerry. You'll see once the bell rings."

Hale Irwin richer, but no louder Open winner keeps low profile

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (UPI) — As the new holder of golf's most prestigious prize, stern-faced Hale Irwin faces a major identity crisis. He has to decide whether to go on being his own colorless self, or to become a second Jack Nicklaus. Irwin, a former football standout at Colorado, presented this perplexing problem for himself after winning the U.S. Open championship Sunday, coming from one shot off the pace to beat Forrest Fezler by two strokes. Tied for third, another shot back, were Bert Yancey and Lou Graham. Although a competent golfer who has shown strong improvement since joining the tour in 1968, Irwin hasn't portrayed the same kind of public image as such other men as Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and Gary Player. While it doesn't particularly concern him, a victory such as the one that earned him $35,000 on Sunday does leave people asking, "Hale who?"

"I like having a low profile," the handsome, dark-haired Irwin said. "I can't say I want to be anonymous, but I think there's a time and a place for everything. I haven't felt before this that I deserved to be in the spotlight. "I'm not going to change now. This is just one tournament —needless to say a very big one —and it'll be good for me, good for my ego. But that doesn't mean I'll be something I'm not. I won the way I am. If that means being anonymous, I can't help it." In talking about what comes next for him, Irwin wasn't prepared to make any reckless commitments. But he believes earnestly that he can't stop here, that he must move to a higher plateau.

"Nicklaus won 14. That's a pretty big goal. I don't think of myself as a Nicklaus, but that's a pretty good goal to shoot at." Irwin's first major triumph fell something short of artistic merit as he shot no better than a three-over-par 73 for his final round, with four bogeys on the final nine, and his winning score of 287 was seven over par for the tournament, the highest by an Open champion in 11 years.

Most of the credit for the incredibly high scores, though, must go to the tortuous Winged Foot Golf Club, whose 6,961 yards yielded only eight subpar rounds during the four days. Irwin was unable to better par once —his best effort being an even-par 70 on Friday —and neither did Fezler, who closed with a 70. Irwin, who said he had a dream three weeks ago that he would win the Open, took control in his own mind on the ninth hole when he sank a 35-foot birdie putt that put him in the lead for good over his playing partner and friend, Tom Watson. Watson, after carrying a one-stroke lead into the final round, folded with a closing 79 that placed him at 292, in a tie for fifth place with Palmer, who had a 76, and Jim Colbert, with a 74.

"It looks like I blew it, and you can say I blew it," said the 24-year-old Watson, still seeking his first tour victory although he has on three occasions been the leader going into the final round.

Johnny Miller, the defending Open champion who admitted that he has lost his competitive desire after winning five tournaments this year, never was in it and his final round 77 left him at 302, 15 strokes off the pace.

A pair of problem pitchers Mickey baffles AL... Andy puzzles NL

United Press International

It was no sweat for Mickey Lolich. The hefty Detroit lefty hurled his 12th complete game of the season and ninth in a row Sunday when he pitched the Tigers to a 3-2 victory in 11 innings over the Kansas City Royals in a game played in chilly 50 degree weather. "The cold weather enabled me to go the 11 innings," said Lolich, who first came to public attention in 1968 when he won three games, including the decisive seventh contest, against St. Louis in the World Series. "The hot weather makes the bulky man sweat," added the 6-foot-1, 207-pound southpaw who posted his third win a row and raised his record for the season to 8-7. Lolich got off to a poor start this year, dropping five of his first six decisions, including the first four in a row. But complete games are nothing new for the Tigers' workhorse who led the American League in that department with 29 in 1971 —before the days of the designated hitter —and in innings pitched with 376. "I feel I've got it all together now," Lolich said after striking out 11 Royals and walking only two as the victory boosted the Tigers into a tie with Cleveland for second place in the East Division. Aurelio Rodriguez, whose three-run homer in the ninth inning Saturday enabled the Tigers to beat the Royals 11-9, got the decisive hit again Sunday when he singled with two out in the 11th to drive in Jim Northrup with the winning run. Detroit got its first two runs in the first without the aid of a hit, thanks to four walks and an error while Hal McRae's two-run homer in the third accounted for Kansas City's runs.

Poll National League players —especially in the Los Angeles Dodgers' clubhouse —and you get a virtually unanimous opinion that the most underrated pitcher in the league is Andy Messersmith. Messersmith has been a 20-game winner only once —when he was 20-13 for the California Angels in 1970 —and started this season with a 73-57 lifetime record. Yet rival hitters have always insisted he is one of the hardest pitchers to hit they've ever faced. Messersmith started the season with a 2.76 lifetime earned run average —a little better than Bob Gibson's 2.79. He has never had an ERA higher than 3.00 in any of his six big league seasons. "Messersmith looked the same as he's looked in his last four starts —outstanding," said Manager Walt Alston Sunday after Andy pitched a five-hitter to give the Dodgers a 7-1 triumph over Tom Seaver and the New York Mets and raise his record to 7-2. Messersmith has yielded only one earned run in his last 35 innings and his loss in his last four starts was by 1-0 to the St. Louis Cardinals. Messersmith matched shutout pitching with Seaver, now 3-6 and with one win since May 17, before the Dodgers scored five runs in the seventh inning. Jim Wynn opened the seventh with a triple and Steve Garvey knocked him in with a single. Singles by Willie Crawford and Ron Cey and two walks produced two more runs and Bill Buckner greeted reliever Bob Miller with a two-run single. The victory kept the Dodgers seven games ahead of the Reds in the NL East while the loss was the Mets' 12th in 16 games.

Legion 9 sweeps pair

The Lompoc Post 211 American Legion baseball team swept a pair of games over the weekend by lopsided scores, but not without paying the price in bumps and bruises. Lompoc beat San Luis 22-5 Saturday in a game cut short by a 15-run-lead rule. Sunday it was a 10-0 win for the locals over host Arroyo Grande. Lompoc is now 4-1 on the season. Today at 5 p.m. Lompoc will host a Legion team from Alameda in an exhibition game at Lompoc High. Lompoc catcher George Renfro headed the injury list, as he was knocked unconscious in a collision at home plate and swallowed his tongue. Team manager Ron Renfro administered first aid and George was taken to the Arroyo Grande community hospital with a concussion. He was treated and released, but will miss today's game. Bruce Duncan was hit by pitches twice yesterday, in the back and wrist, and Jules Hain was clefted in the ankle Saturday in play at third.

Hain got the win Saturday, with relief help from Charlie Denson and Chris Banzhof. Ray Dahlman had three hits, including a 3-run homer that turned into a single when he missed second base. Renfro, George Polly and Dan Guerra had two hits each. Yesterday Craig Winegarner pitched the full nine innings. Renfro had three hits before his accident, as well as his second successful steal of home in two days. Dahlman had two hits and stole home. Lompoc's Corando Lozano made the outstanding defensive play of the game on a ground ball at second base.

SC Trojans (who else?) win Series

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — With clockwork routine, Southern California settled all doubts Saturday about college baseball's supremacy in the 28th annual College World Series. Hobbled by injuries throughout the season and sporting a 45-19 record coming into the series, Coach Rod Dedeaux's Trojans waltzed off with an unprecedented fifth straight championship, their tenth in the history of the series, with a 7-3 victory over the Miami Hurricanes. "I had no doubt we could play the way we did," said Dedeaux after Saturday night's game. "This is the most satisfying win I have ever had because we've had to overcome so much adversity. We lost key men along the way which precluded any chance of rebuilding during the early part of the season." USC wound up the season with a 50-20 mark, while Miami ended up with a record of 51-11. It was the first appearance ever in the series for Miami. Their loss continued the frustration of eastern teams in the NCAA series here. An eastern school hasn't won the meet since Wake Forest downed Western Michigan in 1955. Miami Coach Ron Fraser had praise for his Hurricanes. "Overall, I am extremely proud of this club. No matter what happened, I still consider them No. 1. The errors hurt our ball club and helped give USC four runs, and help is something USC doesn't need in a championship game." Miami had entered the tournament co-ranked No. 1 in the nation with Texas.

George Milke claimed the victory in relief for Southern California, his third in the series, to earn him the Most Valuable Player Award.

Teen netters Borg, Evert win in France

PARIS (UPI) — Bjorn Borg of Sweden turned 18 on June 6. He plans to get his driver's license in July. Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was 19 on December 12. The two teen-agers swept to identical feats Sunday. With victories in the French open tennis championship finals they each won their second consecutive international tennis tournament. America's No. 2 woman pounded Olga Morozova of the Soviet Union 6-1, 6-2 in the women's final. Long-haired Borg made a classy comeback over Spaniard Manuel Orantes 2-6, 6-7, 6-0, 6-1, 6-1 to become the youngest champ ever at the French competition. "Never in my life did I think I could win the Italian and French championships back-to-back," Borg said afterwards. But they both had done it. Two weeks ago in Rome each had won their respective singles championship. But Rome is not considered on the same level with Paris and Evert said, "It's really a thrill to win my first big title. I needed to win this because it's the world's biggest clay court tournament." Now both she and Borg will be shooting at the other two of the world's big three tennis competitions, Wimbledon in England and the U.S. championships at Forest Hills, N.Y. Evert first burst onto the international tennis scene in 1971 when as a 16-year-old she won 46 consecutive tournament matches before losing to Billie Jean King of Los Angeles in the semi-finals of Forest Hills. Evert is petite by women's athletic standards and has brown hair and a dark suntan. After her match Sunday she was wearing bell-bottom jeans, a yellow ribbed knitted pullover and green shoes.

Valley matman wins national age-group title

Mark Bowser, a 14-year-old wrestler from Lompoc, captured the 170-pound championship at the National AAU Age-Group Tournament over the weekend at the Long Beach Sports Arena. Bowser won all five of his matches to capture the gold medal in the 13-14-year-old division, over 21 other wrestlers. Two of Bowser's wins came over wrestlers who had defeated him in previous tournaments. Another valley wrestler, Charles Clees, took second in the 148-pound division of the 13-14-year-old competition, winning four of his five matches. A trio of Valley wrestlers — Benje Williams, Gary Eppley and Paul Larson — leave for Long Beach today to compete in the Open division of the national tourney.

Speedy gearbox transplant

Pescarolo wins Le Mans

LE MANS, France (UPI) — French racing driver Henri Pescarolo has the kind of garage mechanic every motorist would like to meet.

Pescarolo turned over the problem of a wrecked gearbox to his mechanic, who replaced it in just 46 minutes.

Pescarolo and teammate Gerard Larrousse, driving a skyblue three-liter Matra-Simca sports car, kept their start-to-finish lead in Sunday's 42nd running of the Le Mans 24-hour endurance race because of the skill of their mechanics.

"When the car stopped on the Mulsane straightaway, I thought the race was over for me," Pescarolo said after the race.

The race had five hours left to run, and it was 46 minutes before the howling Matra rejoined the diminished field.

But Pescarolo and Larrousse had set up such a margin in the first 19 hours, they never lost the lead in the standings.

The Matra completed 2,862.36 miles at an average speed of 118.98 miles per hour to give both Matra and Pescarolo their third win in as many years.

Forty-nine cars took part in the rolling start in warm, humid weather Saturday. It was one of the smallest fields in recent years.

Twenty-one cars were still running at the finish, including a Japanese rotary-engined Sygma, although more than 1,000 miles behind the winning Matra.

In the first hours of what is traditionally considered the world's toughest sports car race, it looked as if the French government sponsored Matras would turn it into a procession.

Swann, Freitas team up again

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — When quarterback Jesse Freitas of San Diego State and flanker Lynn Swann of University of Southern California team up for the West in the Coaches' All-America game Saturday night at Lubbock, Tex., it will be a reunion.

They were high school teammates at Foster City.

"I'm excited about it, no question about that," Swann said. "Jesse and I look forward to our reunion—that same old combination on the 50-yard line and in the end zone."

Swann was USC's all-time leading receiver.

Health care

They claim that a comprehensive plan would not greatly affect hospital care, but would bring patients flooding into doctors'

The report makes no recommendations. It would seem proper, however, that those responsible for devising a federal health care plan pay heed to the results of this study.

What Mr. Nixon can do

What shapes up at this moment is a veto-proof Congress, as they call it: a Congress so lopsidedly Democratic that a Presidential veto of foolish, McGovernite legislation, will not hold up. If this should

It appears probable that the House of Representatives will impeach him. In any event, it will be foreseeable, along about early July, exactly what the House will do. A close study of the vote taken by the House Judiciary Committee will communicate instantly to Mr. Nixon, the politician, what the full House is likely to do. If at this moment it is really going to impeach, then President Nixon should publicly ask all Republican members to vote in favor of impeachment. He could put it to them that since the House is apparently determined to put questions of Constitutional implications to the Senate to adjudicate, he Nixon would just as soon that the vote were unanimous,

This wouldn't hurt Nixon. But it would hugely help the Republican congressmen. This way they can go back to Orange County and say: "I voted for impeachment — as President Nixon requested me to do." Both sides are pacified. The congressmen are off the hook, and the Senator Doles can decline to discuss the matter at all on the grounds of judicial impropriety. Mr. Nixon can do at least this much to serve the people who voted for him.

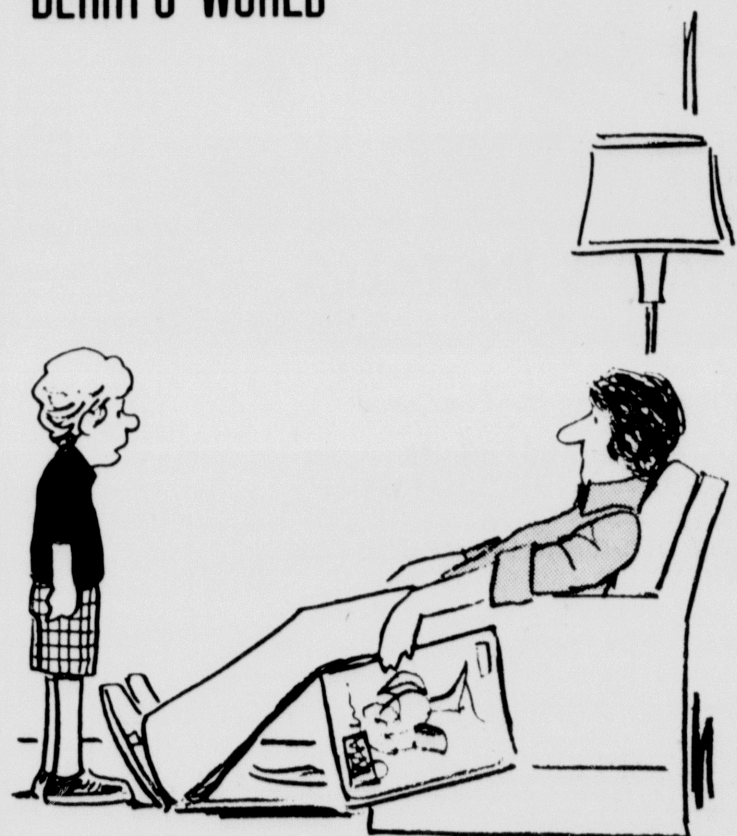

Rhyme time

In defense of the hawk, that raptorial bird:
"Protect him," says he, "and he will maintain
The balance in Nature. Your duty is plain."
A rodent shouts, "Oh please divert us
From hawks, and all those creatures, carnivorous."
And life goes on in Nature's groups;
When a rodent scurries, the hawk still swoops.

"Did General Stonewall Jackson get that name for 'stonewalling' it?"

'OH, DARN IT—AND I HAD SO HOPED TO CLEAR MYSELF!

Trading season

We retired early one evening and as we were welcoming deep sleep, we were startled to hear the clashing of cymbals and the pounding of drums. We knew that the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps never practiced that late in the evening so it had to come from the neighborhood. Worse yet, it came from our house.

THOUGHTS WHILE SHAVING

It's been many, many weeks since the Division of Highways put up that atrocious sign on North H Street that sticks out into the middle of the sidewalk. Several weeks ago they notified local authorities that they would do it different. It's still there. Oh well, suppose they need an environmental study and an architectural review and other bureaucratic procedures before it can be accomplished so we'll just have to be patient...We received a letter this week addressed only to: "Harry Crompe, Fisherman"...Tree trimming is definitely under way, as we reported in a recent column, but we have received a couple of calls from citizens wanting us to investigate why it takes, in most instances, two tree trimmers to a small tree. We'll see if we can find the answer...You will be seeing a new by-line in the Record this summer, that of Fred Vulvin. Fred is a journalism "intern" from Cal Poly who will be with us this summer until he returns to classes in the fall.

Getting through school

But for some reason the times in your life that are the louisiest while they're happening have a way of glistening in your memory.

The supervisor on the swing shift was a taut ex-Marine who habitually leafed through dog eared war combat paperbacks and longed to be

Now and then real criminals maybe they were the Mafia, would want something like a fur shipment. It would be as though a phantom in sneakers had levitated himself over cotton. The subscriber would arrive at his ultrasonically protected shop in the morning to find that everything but the wallpaper had vanished.

Still, those memories seem more distinct than some others of smoother times.

Barbed barbs
